

Moore Musical Moments

A musical child grows to be a musical adult. This is the basis of music education at Tarver-Rendon. A musical adult is tuneful, “beatful,” and artful and can participate in music that is interwoven throughout life. A musical adult is better able to participate in a community. Music participation into adulthood enriches many aspects of life.

2nd – 3rd – 4th

“Doing”	About	Literacy
Singing	History	12 step
Dancing	Theory	Conversational
Playing	Relationships	Solfege – ear
Listening...	Evaluating	first literacy

Each music lesson is designed as a musical workout aimed at growing tuneful, “beatful,” and artful individuals or individuals that can think tunes, feels rhythms and responds to the emotions in the music. In music at Tarver Rendon the focus is on “doing” music - singing, playing, moving, listening – rather than learning “about” music. In Kindergarten and first grade, there are eight different activities in each workout. Like any good workout, in the beginning some participants will likely be clumsy in some aspects of the workout, but with participation and effort are bound to improve. By the time a student reaches second, third, and fourth grade, the lesson is split into three sections with the majority of the time spent in the first area. These sections are: doing music, music literacy (reading notation), and learning about music.
